

Dear All

Welcome to our autumn Newsletter. We have been very busy over the last few months, experiencing record attendance numbers at many of our 42 community-based drop-in Hearing Help sessions. For example, we recently had to change our venue in Cambourne as a result of outgrowing the previous one. We estimate that across 2017 we will maintain approximately 18,000 NHS hearing aids via our Hearing Help sessions, home visits, residential home visits, mobile library service and prison visits. Our work is a lifeline for those who have difficulty accessing mainstream services, particularly those who are older and frailer, have other disabilities or live in rural areas with poor access to transport.

Most of our work is delivered by our dedicated team of volunteers who have been trained to carry out hearing aid maintenance by our Supervisors, Fran and Gaynor, and Audiologists from Addenbrooke's Hospital. We currently have 98 volunteers and we are appealing for even more, especially in Cambridge, Linton, Bottisham, Burwell, Soham and the surrounding areas.

Our next free volunteer training course is taking place this autumn, and full details are provided in this newsletter. This is a great opportunity to add hearing aid maintenance to your existing skills and be part of a passionate and caring team of staff and volunteers, many of whom have shared experience of hearing loss. Hearing aid maintenance volunteering starts at our Hearing Help sessions, with the opportunity to progress onto providing home visits and residential home visits. We are extremely grateful to all our volunteers.

We have enjoyed a good deal of fundraising support from the Cambridgeshire Community, which includes our Grafham Water Safari walk raising a grand total of £2,793.82. Read further to view all our recent donations on our new Donation Wall.

Looking to the future, our plans include: providing our lip-reading classes for free, starting September 2017 (read on for further details); increasing the level of social contact and peer support for the hard of hearing community in Cambridgeshire; and increasing

Our New Trustees

Isobel Hambleton “I am a Cambridgeshire Hearing Help volunteer, and currently a PhD candidate in the Department of Biochemistry at the University of Cambridge, engaged full-time in scientific research. In recent years I have occupied several leadership roles, including serving as a welfare officer on the Clare College graduate student committee and also, two years as Secretary of the University’s scuba diving society, before recently being elected as Chairperson. Although not a hearing aid user myself, I am passionate about the activities of Cambridgeshire Hearing Help. In my spare time I am a keen musician and intrepid traveller, including trekking in the Arctic and camping in the Amazon rainforest!”

Diane Edwards “Before retiring, I was Operations Manager for the eight static and two mobile libraries in the Huntingdon Area of Cambridgeshire Libraries - I now volunteer for the newly formed Brampton Community Library! I have volunteered with Cambridgeshire Hearing Help for about two years and have just become a Trustee. Gardening and flower arranging are two of my interests and I am Treasurer of Brampton Flower Club which has over eighty members. I volunteer at Hinchingsbrooke Hospital and I am Secretary of the Friends of Hinchingsbrooke Hospital.”

Free Lip Reading Classes

Do you have difficulties hearing? Do you have problems hearing against background noise? Many social gatherings are noisy and so make hearing difficult. If your hearing is getting worse, it is better to start lip-reading sooner rather than later; this applies whether or not you use hearing aids. Lip-reading can be especially useful in helping you to understand speech in noisy and other difficult situations.

New classes start on Thursday 28th September 2017 at Hope Hall, 8 Romsey Terrace, Cambridge, CB1 3NH, from 10.30am – 12.30pm. Booking is required. To book your place, please contact Melanie Lombardi ☎ 01223 416141 or email: enquiries@cambridgeshirehearinghelp.org.uk
